OER?

- OER are teaching, learning, and research resources that reside in the public domain or have been released under an intellectual property license that permits their free use or re-purposing by others.
- Open educational resources include full courses, course materials, modules, textbooks, streaming videos, tests, software, and any other tools, materials, or techniques used to support access to knowledge

OER levels of openness

- Material is open for everyones use.
- Material is open for everyone to re-use
- Material and platform is open to everyone.

OER for e-Mentoring

- Our OER requires an easy way to present exercises of self evaluation
- Exercises are presented in different languages
- Exercises are adapted for each country
- No registration, no passwords
- Automated evaluation for each exercise
- No relations between results (no logging)

Outside examples

- Consumer education <http://dolceta.eu>

Choises for OERs

- Moodle – without password for Training 3M-actors (Managers, Mentors, Mentees)
- Custom solution using HTML– for OERs (Employability and Entrepreneurship) for mentees.

Custom design

- There was no Open Source CMS we found that would be good for our requirements
- Any solution would require customization with code
- For end-user it doesn't matter which platform we choose as long as it is easy to use

Easy to use

- Look and feel like www.e-mentoring.eu website
- Simple navigation
- No content which is not related to OER
- Different exercises with controls that users are already familiar: check boxes, radio buttons single line of text, select boxes
- In-line YouTube videos
